This manual seeks to provide the reader with all the resources needed to navigate the internship application process successfully. Designed specifically for doctoral-level psychology graduate students, it acts as a personal mentor with step-by-step instructions. There are checklists, sample real-life application materials, and notes and advice on writing cover letters, thank-you notes and CVs. Tips are presented on writing your autobiographical statement and other required essays, and there are several example essays. The volume also includes tips on using the APPIC online directory and recommendations on how to construct your rank ordered list.
