Five years after the summer of THE LIFE YOU'VE IMAGINED, Anna Geneva's mother is getting married. This means Anna must return to her hometown and the scene of her infamous affair with her teenage love Will Becker, who was married at the time, with a young daughter. Anna plans to avoid him, watch her mom get married, and hightail it back to her private law practice and her cozy apartment in Chicago. But in a town as small as Haven, avoiding the elder son of a prominent family is harder than it seems, especially with so much shared history. And Maeve Geneva's wedding? Well, the bride is starting to worry that maybe she's not ready to marry again after all, though she swears her ex-husband's affectionate postcards have nothing to do with that. Anna thought she'd left her hometown behind for good five years ago, but she's learning it takes more than two hundred miles along the Lake Michigan shore to put Haven truly behind her...
