PERSONAL PROJECT DIARY: Why & how to keep a project diary and develop as a project manager Steven G. Lauck PMP

Daily a project manager's experience, training, and skills are put to the test. Most of the time their observations and reactions are lost as other things happen. One day blends into the next and the mind moves on. By taking 15 minutes at the end of the day to capture what happened, thoughts, and reactions does a couple of things. First, it is a way to relieve stress. Second, it may reveal opportunities for self-education and training. Lastly, it will help build confidence in your development as a project manager.
