You aren't free to love until you realize you can't make someone love you back.

As builder Pete Banks is finishing a remodel for psychologist Zoey Donovan, she arrives home dazed, injured, and distraught. As he calms her down, she draws him in with her halting story of how Thad Dalton, a local cop and Pete's roommate, saved her life. When Pete learns Thad was shot, he's torn between staying with a woman in need and being there for his roommate.

Zoey never intended to blurt out to a man she's never met how she almost died, but Pete's understanding nature alters something inside her. Usually, she's the one trying to figure out her clients' needs, not the other way around. While Pete Banks is one of kind, she can't tear her mind from Thad, the man who risked his life for her.

Detective Thad Dalton was never so scared in his life when a madman grabs Zoey in the hospital corridor and threatens to kill her if his demands aren't met. Thad ends up taking a bullet to save her but would do it again if it means having her in his life.

When Zoey, Thad, and Pete attend Thad's parents' anniversary party sparks fly. She realizes she wants a more personal connection to these two men. While Thad's on board, Pete doesn't think he's worthy. His self-loathing forces him to retreat and casts doubt on their future together. Zoey and Thad are justifiably both mad and hurt. It's going to take a miracle to patch this threesome back together for their happily ever after.
