One Destination: Discovering the underlying principles of the religions and spiritual traditions of the world. Brett Strobridge

This book compiles teachings of many different faiths to illustrate the harmony of their spiritual mission, that is, to draw us closer to the divine and each other.

Acts of love, forgiveness and mercy are not made less precious to those in desperate need of them by virtue of being performed under the banner of a 'wrong' or 'right' religion, or any at all. A starving man does not care IF or WHO you worship, but it is the kindness in your act of feeding him (even in silence) that sustains him. Our spiritual-self, matured and manifested is nothing less than love in-action, and it is not ONLY made valuable when brought forth by the tenants of a specific religion or culture on earth. The failure to accept this fact threatens to suppress more charity in the world, promoting greater misery in its place.

Mankind has always been in the business of trying to limit God, appealing to a specific market or denomination to maximize profit and power. God in contrast is in the business of (according to nearly every tradition) setting mankind FREE; to liberate us from pain, delusion, separation from the divine, from our own carnal and destructive ways.

I encourage you to take your time with this simple introduction into religious pluralism. Expand your general religious knowledge with a brief study of many heartfelt scriptures, taken from a variety of ancient and widespread religious and spiritual traditions in the world.
